

COVID-19: online the in-depth section of clinical information

March 26, 2020

"FBK for health" offers a reasoned section on COVID-19 in which indications and materials, useful especially on the clinical side, are collected. The section is continuously updated and is addressed in particular to healthcare personnel but also accessible to all those who wish to learn more.

On "FBK for health website" you can consult a collection of information about the COVID-19 emergency, which includes some papers recently published in the New England Journal of Medicine and other sector journals, as well as several documents containing useful guidelines , including those of the Italian National Institute of Health and the European Center for Disease Prevention and Control.

The material is aimed in particular at those who work in the health sector but the consultation is free and accessible to all those who wish to learn more.

In particular, there are eight sections continuously updated with relevant news from the medical-scientific literature, clinical and epidemiological studies, training resources, recommendations and guidelines, links from the territory, clinical ethics and reading suggestions, such as the article "Covid-19: how to prevent a second epidemic wave" from the Mario Negri Institute for Pharmacological Research – IRCCS.

«The "FBK for health" program has been taking care of the training of health personnel for years. At a time like this, when all "public" activities are suspended, we believe that it is important to collect and make immediately available the scientific material that is published in relation to the pandemic by COVID-19 – explains Antonella Graiff, head of the FBK program for health – . We therefore select the most relevant articles, news and recommendations on a daily basis, hoping to provide a useful service to those who, in any sector of the assistance activity, are facing this
