

L'arte di migrare | The art of migrating

March 21, 2017

FBK-ISR is a partner of "The art of migrating" sponsored by the City of Riva del Garda in the framework of the 13th Action Week Against Racism from March 20 to March 26

The FBK Center for Religious Studies (ISR) contributes to the kaleidoscopic program of "The Art of migrating", with which the municipality of Riva del Garda brings to Trentino – for the first time the national project entitled "A colori è meglio" (Color is better).

FBK-ISR has focused mainly on the interactive exhibit "Conoscere per sconfinare" (Learning about to cross the frontier) built with texts, photographs and videos, and designed to facilitate the deconstruction of stereotypes and prejudices against refugees, immigrants, second-generation immigrants.

"I do appreciate this program – FBK-ISR Director Marco Ventura said during the press conference on March 17 – because it responds to a real demand of the people. There is increasing interest for religious differences, which are constantly and rapidly changing, and constantly urge us and surprise us, for example in the rulings of recent weeks, signaling big shifts in public opinion, unimaginable until just a few years ago. We live in times that create in us feelings of immobility and paralysis, a sense of not being able to answer to new questions; on the contrary, this project works, as it should, on the available maneuvering space, on the concrete possibility to do something, to move on, to get out of paralysis. Positive and appropriate, for example, is what this project makes young people do, i.e. work on issues of prejudice and stereotype».

The initiative "The Art of migrating" is part of the 13th Action Week against Racism organized by the National Office against Racial Discrimination and aims to encourage the creation of a social and cultural context that can prevent discrimination and intolerance, and promotes a society that is more inclusive and able to deal with the dynamics of identity change.
